

Hanging lamp N°1

Muller Van Severen

Product Type Wall Light

Although most design lovers know Muller Van Severen for their furniture, the design couple's story actually kicked off with the conception of these hanging lamps. "It all started from a need." Hannes explains. "We were renovating our home which is an old house. There was no socket to plug in a lamp above the dining table, so we designed a lamp that could hang from the wall."

The first prototypes were shown at Muller Van Severen's very first solo exhibition in 2011. During that exhibition, Fien and Hannes filled the gallery space Valerie Traan of Veerle Wenes (art director of valerie_objects) with designs that looked as if someone took a set of crayons and started drawing in the air. This is in fact exactly how these lamps should be interpreted, as seemingly naive drawings materialized into real life.
